Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 25 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Scattered showers on Wednesday. Fine, becoming warmer later this week.

This Evening and Tonight:
Any remaining showers will quickly die away during the evening, followed by largely clear skies. Remaining dry though feeling chilly in rural areas. Some thicker cloud expected across the northernmost counties by dawn. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Wednesday:
Occasionally cloudy in the morning with a scattering of showers slowly clearing east. Becoming dry and bright, with the best chance of any sunshine in the west. Feeling warmer. Maximum temperature 18 deg C (64 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
A fine and dry period, with variable amounts of cloud but feeling warm in any spells of sunshine, especially on Saturday. Some chilly nights, with overnight fog likely for some.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.